

SUNDAY BLUE LAWS ARE QUIVERING ON THRONE OF CENTURY

Governor Pinchot Signs Bill
Providing Local Option

BASEBALL & FOOTBALL

May Be Permitted Between
2 and 6 P. M. On Sundays

By Joseph A. Loftus
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

HARRISBURG, Apr. 26.—(INS)—Pennsylvania's Sunday blue laws quivered today on the throne from which they have reigned proud and invulnerable for a century and two score years.

Gov. Gifford Pinchot with the stroke of his pen last night drove the crumbling wedge into the ancient statutes which have governed Sabbath observance in the State since 1794.

Directly his approval of the Schwartz bill does not modify the blue laws. The bill technically is referendum legislation. It provides that before Sunday sports may be legalized the voters of the individual municipalities must give their approval. The question will go on the ballot in November and once in three years thereafter on demand. Thus, the sports may be legal in one community and unlawful in another, according as the majority of the voters of each decide.

Legalization of Sunday sports is confined to baseball and football between the hours of 2 p. m. and 6 p. m. One effect of the Governor's approval was conceded on all sides: Philadelphia and Pittsburgh next summer will have major league baseball on Sunday for the first time in history.

In its original form the bill would directly modify the Sunday laws. The Senate defeated it. If it had not, Governor Pinchot would have vetoed it, he said. As amended to provide for a referendum first, the measure barely passed the upper branch.

Not since the Sabbath laws were enacted in 1794 have the voters received an opportunity to pass directly upon a proposal to modify them. Never, in fact, has a Pennsylvania governor been asked to act on a bill to make that opportunity possible. Such legislation always has been squelched in the General Assembly. It was never even advanced as far as a floor vote in the Senate until two months ago. The fight was bitter.

Approval of the bill comes from a Governor who has made his political appeal chiefly to the voting element that is opposed to the measure. Governor Pinchot said he was warned it would be politically expensive for him to sign the bill and admitted: "In all probability that is true."

He added: "But I am not concerned with politics. I am concerned with what I believe to be right—and I believe it is right to sign it."

"I am convinced that the people can be trusted to decide this matter for themselves."

He declared flatly that he was opposed to commercialization of the Sabbath. "But in a state which has Sunday trains, Sunday concerts, Sunday golf, Sunday tennis and a host of Sunday activities of many other kinds, the possible addition of baseball and football between the hours of 2 and 6, if the people of any locality vote for it, will not seriously change the present picture."

In a broadcast which carried the scratch of the pen approving the bill, Governor Pinchot continued:

"For years anyone with money enough to play golf or tennis on Sunday morning or afternoon has been free to do so—law or no law. Golf, with its young caddies working on Sunday, has been tolerated during church services for those who had the price. For those who did not have the price there was no corresponding recreation even when church services were not being held."

"This unjust discrimination in favor of the rich and against the poor which has thus existed is one of my strongest reasons for signing this bill."

"We are urged not to abandon the Puritan Sabbath. As a matter of fact the Puritan Sabbath in Pennsylvania was abandoned generations ago. We have gone a long way since the time when it was illegal for a man to kiss his wife on Sunday."

STRIKE INCREASES

Allentown, Apr. 26.—Workers were on strike in three shirt factories as a result of a general walk-out called by the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America in protest to sweat shop conditions. Complying with the union's orders, more than 150 factory workers went out on strike at the plants of the Lehigh Valley and Hampton Shirt Company; Bernstein & Sons and the Morris Freezer Shirt Company.

Meanwhile striking employees of the Penn-Allen Shirt Company were returning to work after the owners recognized the union and announced a ten per cent increase.

YARDLEY BRIDGE BILL

Harrisburg, Apr. 26.—The Buckman bill authorizing the Department of Highways to negotiate with New Jersey officials for the construction of a free bridge near Yardley, Pennsylvania, was on the first reading calendar of the House today. The bill has been approved by the Senate.

COMPROMISE ON BILL

Harrisburg, Apr. 26.—Hope for the revival of work relief for the unemployed hinged today upon the vote of the bill of Senator John S. Rice, Adams County, which, as a result of a compromise, will be amended before it is reported out of House Committee for final passage. The amendment represents legislation drafted by the Attorney General's office. They have the support of the bill sponsors, officials of the State Emergency Relief Board and the Workmen's Insurance concern who were instrumental in effecting the compromise.

MAY READJUST DEBT

Washington, D. C., Apr. 26.—A readjustment of Great Britain's four billion dollar debt to the United States is under way, but its form and substance remained hidden today behind the screen of other issues, disarmament, tariff, trade restrictions, monetary stabilization, all of which have figured in the discussions between President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald.

The British Premier brought his Washington visit to a close without, so far as is known, any assurance that the installment of $75,950,000 due on June 15th will be postponed. Congressional circles anticipated a request from President Roosevelt for authority to postpone collection at least for the period of the World Economic Conference now set to begin on June 12th, but the joint statement issued by the President and the Premier made last midnight made no mention of it.

DISTINGUISHED HONOR STUDENTS ARE LISTED

Four Such at Bensalem High;
Several Honor Students;
Select Play

ARRANGE FOR DEBATES

BENSALEM TWP. HIGH SCHOOL, CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, April 26.—Distinguished honor students at Bensalem are: Ethel Hartman, Dorothy Abel, Peter Dumbloskas, and Mabel Ridge. Honor students are: Helen Cassile, Emilie Frank, Anna Hunter, Oscar Schrieber, Henry VanSant, Louis Tomlinson, Florence McCaughy, Marcella Whartenby, Margaret Meder, William Getz, Etta VanSant, Nelsie McClay, Henry Skoczak, Jennie Stackhouse, Margaret Hinkle, and William McAndrew.

The school play has been selected. It is "The Third Floor Front," a prize play by Lida Larrimore. The play is a lively comedy, with a cast of 12 interesting characters. An intriguing love affair, and a stolen pearl necklace help make the plot an exciting one. The play will be coached by Miss Jane Kohler and Mr. Cox. The cast included: Abigail Winchester Wilkes, Eleanor White; Tobias Wilkes, her husband, Harry Seltzer; Nancy Virginia Wilkes, their daughter, Norah Budney; Jack Gordon, "the third floor front," Sydney Smith; Lizzie, a maid of all work, Stella Bluis; Augustus Wallace, a wealthy politician, Ryland Michener; Helen Wallace, his wife, Thelma Carson; Celia Langdon, a society girl, Virginia Bristow; James J. Hopkins, a boarder, Norman Foster; Cora Hopkins, his daughter, Margaret Edelman; Mrs. Wellington Blair, a widow, Eleanor Barclow; Robert Simms, a newspaper reporter, Richard Lukens.

The guidance classes of sections 9A, 9B and 9C recently visited the University of Pennsylvania. The question for debate this year is "Resolved, That the United States Should Officially Recognize Soviet Russia." This year there were no judges, no decisions, and no champion, but this did not reduce, even slightly, the enthusiasm of the modern Ciceros.

Balance of the Bensalem baseball schedule is as follows: May 2, Yardley at Bensalem; 16, Langhorne, at Langhorne; 23, Newtown at Bensalem (Tuesdays); April 28, Morrisville, at Morrisville; May 5, Fallsington at Bensalem; 11, Morrisville, at Bensalem; 19, Bristol, at Bristol; 26, Alumin, at Bensalem; June 2, Southampton, at Southampton (Fridays).

Following is the Bensalem track schedule: April 29, Penn relay; May 2, Bensalem vs. Morrisville, at Bensalem; 12, Bucks County Meet, at Bristol; 20, P. I. A. Meet at Upper Darby; 25, Bensalem vs. Jenkintown, at Bensalem.

Montgomery 8 'n' 40 Is Entertained at Langhorne

LANGHORNE, Apr. 26.—Women of the 8 'n' 40 from Montgomery County were guests of Bucks County Salon, 74, 8 'n' 40, at the Memorial House, here last evening.

Entertainment numbers included a play, "Miss Iva New-way's School," by members from Bristol and vicinity; and a fashion show featuring old-time costumes, by partners from the Langhorne section.

A short business meeting preceded the program. A repast was also a feature, and was much enjoyed by the 30 attending.

Matter of Utmost Importance

Will the person who wrote unsigned letter to Mr. S. S. the F. C. March 26th, about matter of 32, please communicate, giving more information.

Hulmeville W. C. T. U. And Guests Enjoy Entertainment

HULMEVILLE, Apr. 26.—Women of Hulmeville Women's Christian Temperance Union and their guests, totaling 50, enjoyed an evening of entertainment and sociability in the local lodge room last evening.

The first portion of the program included musical selections: instrumental duets, "Repas March," and "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life," Mrs. Harry Rickerson and Miss Elizabeth Foster; saxophone solos, "Love and Flowers," and "Sing Me to Sleep," Miss Betty Lou Lathrop, with Miss Clara L. Hlick accompanying; selection on the saw, Raymond Hibbs, with Mrs. George Hibbs acting as accompanist; instrumental numbers, "Drowsy Waters" and "Hawaiian Mountain Waltz," Messrs. Wallace Davis and Raymond Hibbs; cornet solos, "Whispering Love" and "Class Day March," Kimbel Faust, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Samuel K. Faust.

Participants in a backward drill were: Mrs. Hugh B. Webster, Mrs. Harold Daseburg; the Misses Marie Hanson, Mary Thompson, Lorraine Winder, Elizabeth Foster, Elma E. Haefner, Grace H. Hlick, Adeline E. Reetz, Erda M. Schatt.

Stunts and games were also enjoyed; and refreshments of apple pie, ice cream, cake and coffee served. The table decorations consisted of violet plants, and green and yellow candles.

Two Hundred Hear Glee Club's Concert

The Bristol Glee Club gave its third annual concert last evening in the Bristol M. E. Church auditorium before an audience of some 200 people.

The glees by the club, under the capable direction of Andrew MacArthur, were exceptionally well rendered, as were also the vocal and instrumental solos by the assisting artists.

Words of welcome to those assembled and of appreciation for their loyal support, were spoken by J. Byron Johnson, president of the Glee Club. Mr. Johnson told of the organization of the club three years ago under the direction of the late Thomas H. Snelson; of its success up to the time of Mr. Snelson's death and of its continued success since, under the leadership of Andrew MacArthur. He extended an invitation to all men, interested in singing, to attend the rehearsals of the club which are held in the Travel Club Home, Cedar street, bi-weekly on Tuesday evenings, at eight o'clock. Mr. Johnson stated the club was indeed fortunate in having Andrew MacArthur as its leader and Keith Rosser as its accompanist.

The assisting artists were: Nona Lappan, soprano; Mrs. Charles I. Bowen, soprano; Mrs. Russell A. Johnson, contralto; Miss Yetta Seidler, accompanist.

The soloists were accompanied by Keith Rosser.

DOYLESTOWN MERCHANTS WANT TO BAN ITINERANTS

DOYLESTOWN, April 26.—War was declared on itinerant merchants at a meeting of Borough Council.

At least twenty-five of these, it was reported, meet weekly at a local bazaar, and they are all non-residents of Doylestown.

It is claimed that they do not "back up their goods," from reports presented to Council. One merchant reported that a Doylestown housewife bought linoleum that was sold for 10 yards and when she arrived home, upon measurement, discovered it was less than nine yards.

One prominent Doylestown merchant announced to Council that "we cannot carry on a business with this cut-throat competition." Every local merchant, it was pointed out, must back up his goods or lose the confidence of his people.

From observation last week, another merchant reported that at the bazaar, two or three vendors occupy one booth, making a total of thirty-five merchants within twenty booths.

After considerable discussion, one of the local merchants presented a

ANNOUNCE RULES FOR TRACK-FIELD EVENTS, MAY 6TH

John Rafferty Sets Forth The Conditions for Boys'
Day

STATES REQUIRED AGES

Lists Numerous Events to Be Held On That Day

Rules and regulations for the track and field events of Boys' Week are announced today by John Rafferty, who is in charge of the track and field events to be held Saturday, May 6th.

"All ages are as of July 1st," says Mr. Rafferty, in his statement and "there will be five points for first place, three for second place and one for third place."

Three contestants and one alternate may be entered in each event. Four contestants and one alternate in each relay race (one team).

A boy may not be entered in more than three events.

Sprints—Three heats in each sprint shall be run. First and second of each heat qualify for final. All contestants shall run in lanes provided for them. Any contestant may be disqualified by the referee for running out of his lane, jostling, impeding another contestant.

Relay—The relative positions of the teams on the starting line shall be drawn for and in these positions the baton shall be exchanged. Each runner must pass the baton to his succeeding team-mate in relative position to start, and in a zone which shall be ten (10) yards on each side of starting line (twenty yards). No member of a team may step out of his zone to help a team-mate, and the baton must actually be passed and not thrown or dropped. Failure to pass the baton shall disqualify the team.

Jumps—Broad Jump: Each competitor shall be allowed three tries. If a competitor jumps from in front of a take-off line while taking off for a jump, it shall be no jump, but counts as a try. If a competitor runs across the take-off line and has made no effort to jump, this shall be counted as a balk and not a try. Two successive balks shall be counted as a try.

Shot Put—Each competitor shall be allowed three tries. The measurement of the put shall be from the nearest edge of the first mark made by the shot to the point of the circumference of the circle nearest the mark. Poul puts which shall not be measured, but which shall count as puts, are as follows: (1) Letting go of the shot in an attempt; (2) touching the ground outside of the circle with any portion of the body while the shot is in the hand, or stepping over the mark while putting the shot.

High Jump—A line, to be known as the balk line, shall be drawn 3 feet in front of the bar and parallel therewith, and stepping over such line in any attempt shall count as a balk. Two balks shall count as a trial. Displacing the bar or leaving the ground in any attempts shall count as a trial. An illegal jump shall be one in which the competitor dives or somersaults over the bar or jumps in such a manner that his head crosses the bar in advance of both feet. At least one of the competitor's feet must clearly precede the head over the bar in a legal jump. The bar shall be set at a height of ... feet for first jump for boys fourteen to sixteen years, and a height of ... feet for the first jump for other boys. A contestant shall be allowed three tries.

Ties—In case two or more competitors tie in any event for places which count for points, the point shall be divided equally between these competitors and the prizes shall be awarded by lot.

Events: 50 yard dash for boys 8 and 9; 75 yard dash for boys 10 and 11; 85 yard dash for boys 12 and 13; 100 yard dash for boys 14 and 15; broad jump for boys 14 and 16; high jump for boys 14 and 16; shot put (12 lbs.) boys 14 and 16; broad jump for boys all other ages; high jump for boys all other ages; shot put (8 lbs.) all other ages; relay race, each boy runs 440 yards, boys 14 and 16; relay race, each boy runs 220 yards, all other ages.

Events: 50 yard dash for boys 8 and 9; 75 yard dash for boys 10 and 11; 85 yard dash for boys 12 and 13; 100 yard dash for boys 14 and 15; broad jump for boys 14 and 16; high jump for boys 14 and 16; shot put (12 lbs.) boys 14 and 16; broad jump for boys all other ages; high jump for boys all other ages; shot put (8 lbs.) all other ages; relay race, each boy runs 440 yards, boys 14 and 16; relay race, each boy runs 220 yards, all other ages.

A GOOD TIME-PIECE

(By "The Stroller")
Neshamony Lodge of Odd Fellows has in its lodge room at Hulmeville a clock 61 years old of which the members are very proud, and which keeps accurate time.

The time-piece, a large wall-clock, was presented to the Hulmeville lodge in 1872 by "John Wanamaker & Company," which company was then located at 818-820 Chestnut street, Philadelphia. The presentation was made through a member of the Neshamony Lodge, James Adams, who was also a salesman for the Wanamaker Company. Bestowal of the gift occurred when the structure housing the lodge headquarters was built at Hulmeville.

Plant Exchange To Feature Garden Section Meeting

A meeting of the Garden Section of Bristol Travel Club will be held in the club home tomorrow at three o'clock. All members are asked to be present.

A plant exchange will be a feature, in charge of Mrs. Walter Pitsonka, Miss Mary Haines and Mrs. George Boswell.

Plans for summer activities will be discussed.

PLAN ANNIVERSARY

Odd Fellows Lodges of Bucks County, together with Rebekas and Encampments will hold their anniversary meeting in Salem Reformed Church, Doylestown, Sunday, April 30th, at eight o'clock. The grand chaplain, the Rev. Charles F. Freeman, will deliver the chief address. It is expected that the grand master, Archibald Grant, Scranton, will be present.

BELIEVE IN SIGNS

"We believe in the United States of America" signs are being displayed everywhere in Bristol and now we read that the Langhorne Lions Club has adopted the slogan and will follow the policy of the Bristol Rotary Club in distributing the signs for display.

We wonder if the real meaning of the signs has been or is being impressed upon, not only the merchants displaying them but the public which reads them.

There is a wealth of advice to those who read these signs. Ponder upon the words and think seriously of them. Then act.

THE CIVILIZING FORCE

According to one conception, the love of money is the root of all evil; according to another, it is one of the great principles that move the world. It is not deniable that love of money leads to the commission of many crimes. On the other hand, what would be the material and moral state of the world were there no passion for wealth? We would have few of the comforts and conveniences that are now available to most of us if most of the people were indifferent to money; did not care greatly for it or for the things that are to be had in exchange for it.

All the great discoveries in science and every one of the great inventions that have been made might have been brought forth if nobody cared for money. But they would not have been turned to account. Knowledge is useful only when employed to the general advantage. If there were no love of money there would be no capital to exploit the products of science and invention, nor would there be incentive to engage in the manufacture and distribution of the great mass of devices that have become necessities to us.

People would be born, struggle along through a space of time to secure a bare living and die. They might or they might not be concerned about a future state. Whether or not they were, they would be kept as busy as we are finding the things they required. And they would be as ruthless about it as twentieth century man is often alleged to be in the quest of money. Primitive civilization was more brutal than ours is. In the process of refinement through which he has passed during the successive centuries man has denounced as criminal behavior that which could not be condemned in earlier times because it seemed to be necessary for individual preservation.

In the pursuit of money today there is a minimum of injustice. At any rate everybody gets a chance to secure a share of the general store of wealth, usually enough for his needs, and at the same time may enjoy the fruits of intelligence and industry. More, everybody who works for money nowadays makes a contribution to the common welfare. The love of wealth moves the world a great deal; it may be responsible for considerable evil. However, our progress has made it possible to supply most legitimate wants legitimately, hence there is less need to resort to devious ways to secure money.

"MARY FAITH"

by Beatrice Burton

COPYRIGHT, 1931, BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

SYNOPSIS

Mary Faith, comely young orphan, gives up her position as secretary to the wealthy Mark Nesbit to marry Kimberley Farrell, Kim, a young, shiftless lawyer, lives with his mother. When the latter objects to the marriage, Kim brusquely startles Mary Faith by breaking the engagement. Later, when he sees her with Mark Nesbit in a jewelry store, selecting a ring, his jealousy is aroused. The next morning he appears at Mary Faith's boarding house and overwhelms her with his protestations of love. She again leaves her position and, after a hasty marriage, they spend an ecstatic two weeks' honeymoon in the house of Kim's aunt in the country. Returning home, Mary Faith moves to the Farrell apartment. Kim's friends, Claire and Jack Maldon, find Mary Faith a dull companion for their jazz parties. Mary Faith realizes Kim is irritated by her failure to drink and gamble. During the winter Kim attends the parties alone. Mary Faith takes care of the house but knows nothing of Kim's finances. When he hints at being pinched for money, Mary Faith accedes to his request for $60. Later, he admits taking that sum from the firm's collections for his own use. The next night, at dinner, he tells Mary Faith he has lost his position. He then persuades her to let him have a thousand dollars to open his own office. Mary Faith, learning that she is to become a mother, joyously visits Kim's office to tell him the good news. She finds him flirting with a girl. Kim is furious. Mary Faith decides not to tell him of the approaching event. Back in the apartment, Kim tells Mary Faith and his mother that he is getting out of his marriage is a failure. Mary Faith tries to stop him from leaving but he is adamant. "We made a mistake," Kim said. Mary Faith tells Mrs. Farrell that her baby is to be born in January. They decide to stay on in the flat. Without informing Kim, Mary Faith mails $60 to his former employers. Mary Faith looks for work.

CHAPTER XXV

"Of course, Florrie will give you a job," Jean said. "She knows what slick work you do, and she'll be mighty glad to get you. I'll fix it for you first thing tomorrow morning."

"What happened between you and Kim, Mary Faith?"

Mary Faith put her head to one side, thinking "Well, for one thing he was bored, Jean, and I didn't know it. I didn't mind staying at home nights or going to a picture show with him. As long as he was with me I didn't need anybody else. But he got tired of me, it seems."

"Tired of you, bahl!" cried Jean with infinite scorn in her voice. "He marries the best-looking girl and the nicest girl in this town and gets tired of her in five months! He didn't have sense enough to appreciate you, that's what! I've known you, for five years and I've never been bored by you. It's too bad you didn't marry Mark Nesbit, Mary Faith, when you had the chance. And you did have it. Everybody at the office knew that he was absolutely lay-wire over you."

She took a vanity case out of her tan silk bag and powdered her face before she finished what she had to say: "The trouble with Kim Farrell is that he has a heart as big as a hotel. He falls for every girl he meets. . . . I never told you that he met me, but he even tried to date me up while you were engaged to him; and I was always bumping into him when he was out stepping with other girls. Remember how I used to urge you to marry him before he left you high and dry? . . . What are you going to do now? Divorce him?"

Divorce. . . . The very word was paralyzing to Mary Faith. She stood staring blankly at Jean for a full minute before she answered her.

"Oh, no, I'd never divorce Kim, Jean. What makes you ask me if I would? You've seen him lately with some girl, haven't you?"

"No, I haven't, but he's left you, hasn't he? And, so far as I can make out, he's left you without a cent to bless yourself with. I should think you'd want to be free from a man like that—after the baby comes, of course. It's just possible that, in the course of human events, you might want to marry again sometime, you know. Such things have happened."

"No, I'd never want to marry again. No matter what happens there never will be anybody but Kim for me, Jean—and there's just a chance that he'll come back here to me if he knows that I want him."

Jean's lips, painted the bright red of sealing wax, curled in a smile that was half tenderness and half contempt. She shrugged her shoulders once more.

"I must go," she said. "I have a date with a man from Phoenix, Arizona. Burr sold him a car the other day and brought him out to the house last night to play cards with us. He's a whiz—tall and tanned and blue-eyed. You ought to see him, Mary Faith; and you ought to hear him talk about his ranch down in the Salt River Valley. He grows everything on it, from cantaloupes to cotton. Well, I hope you'll enjoy working for Florrie. I think you will. I'd work for her myself but I don't believe relatives ever get along in business, do you?" And she went away to keep her engagement with the ranchman from Arizona.

On the first Monday in June Mary Faith started work as a stenographer for the Write-O Stenographic Service at twenty-five dollars a week. The office was a big, up-to-date one on the ground floor of the Arcade Building on Spring Street a few blocks away from the Towers Building where Kim had his law office.

The Arcade Building was the largest building in town. It had its own restaurant, its own barber shop and beauty shop its own newsstand and shoe-shining parlor, its own circulating library. It was a little city in itself.

Florrie Bond employed two girls besides Mary Faith, and she herself was busy all day long answering the telephone and making appointments or arrangements for bringing work into the office. She was a pretty, clever-looking girl with black hair and eyes and a tall slender figure. She never wore anything but black—lustrous clinging black—and a string of pearls.

"I'm going to let you stay in the office all the time, Mrs. Farrell," she said to Mary Faith when she came to work that first hot June morning. "Sometimes the other girls go out to take dictation or do typing in the other offices of the building. Sometimes they fill in as substitutes when the regular stenographers are ill or on vacation. But Jean tells me that you want to be as quiet as possible."

She gave Mary Faith a desk near the big windows that looked out into the lobby of the building. And there Mary Faith sat eight hours a day, typing lawyers' briefs, manuscripts, letters, anything that came her way.

Once again her days were filled with the click of typewriter keys, the ringing of the telephone, the slam and rattle of filing cabinet drawers, the sound of the downtown traffic outside the front windows of the office.

Every morning she packed her lunch in the cool breezy kitchen of the flat—usually two tomato sandwiches and a thermos bottle of the coffee that was left over from breakfast. She ate it, sitting at her desk, with a book from the library lying open on her typewriter before her.

Every night she walked part of the way home, because Dr. Thatcher had told her that she ought to take plenty of exercise. She and Kim's mother would get supper together, and afterward, when the dishes were done they would stroll around Haulton Park or go to the moving picture theater, a block from home.

"For a couple of deserted women we get along very well, don't we?" Mary Faith sometimes asked cheerfully when they were walking along side by side through the warm, breathing darkness of the summer night. "I wonder what Kim would think if he knew that we were still living in the flat."

They never heard from him.

"That's because we've had the telephone taken out," Mrs. Farrell decided. "He's probably tried to call our number, and because he can't get it he undoubtedly thinks we've moved out."

"He could find out by telephoning Aunt Ella or Mrs. Puckett," Mary Faith reminded her. "We'll hear from him pretty soon. Certainly he'll begin to wonder where you are and whether you're all right or not."

But the June roses withered and died in Haulton Park, and July came in bringing with it midsummer heat that was like the breath of a blast furnace, and still they did not hear from Kim.

One night they came home from the picture show and found him sitting in his roadster in the street outside the apartment.

When he saw them he got out of it and came across the sidewalk to them. In the fan of light from the vestibule he looked very big and handsome in a pale gray suit that Mary Faith had never seen before. At first she thought he had come back to her and her knees turned to water and her heart beat like a trip-hammer.

"Why, Kim!" she said simply. "I want to talk to you, Mary Faith." He gave her a cold level look from his gray eyes, and turned to his mother. "How are you, Mother, and what are you doing here? Until tonight I thought you were safe and sound in Garrettville with Aunt Ella."

"No, I'm safe and sound right here where I belong," said his mother. "Mary Faith and I thought we'd be more comfortable here, so after you left we stayed on."

"How do you manage it?" He followed them into the flat and waited while they turned on the lights in the little sitting room. Then he sat down on the arm of the Turkish leather rocker just inside the door, balancing his gray hat on one knee.

It was Mary Faith who answered him. "I got a job, Kim," she said, "and we cut down expenses here. We had the telephone taken out and we stopped eating meat and doing a lot of other little things that meant spending money. We get along very nicely, don't we, Mrs. Farrell."

"We certainly do. We may not have all the luxuries of life," admitted Kim's mother, "but at least we're not accepting charity from anybody, and we're not stuck in a boarding house or a miserable country town. . . ."

Kim wasn't listening to her. His eyes were on Mary Faith's face.

"Did you send sixty dollars to McIntire and Westover about a month ago?" he asked her.

"I did, Kim. I knew that you wanted to send it yourself, in all probability, but that you were too stiff-necked ever to do it, and so I sent it for you. Why do you want to know about it, Kim? Have you heard from Mr. McIntire?"

He nodded his blond and handsome head. "He sent for me last Friday," he said. "He told me that he admired the spirit that prompted me to return that money, and pulled a lot of that sort of talk on me. I didn't know what he was driving at but I had brains enough to keep my mouth shut. He told me he thought I'd learned my lesson, and then he told me I could come back to work for him if I wanted to."

"And did you?"

"Of course. I was starving to death down there in the Towers Building. If I hadn't gone back to him I'd have had to get a job somewhere else. . . . For a week I've been wondering about that money, and tonight it occurred to me that you might have sent it to him. I knew that you and Jack Maldon were the only two people who knew that I never had turned it in at the office. I telephoned Mrs. Puckett's but she told me that she hadn't seen you in weeks. So I came around here."

"First Lady" and Ishbel Kindred Spirits

White House Hostess and Daughter of British Premier Alike in Many Ways. Both Tireless Workers for Human Betterment—Both Simple—Friendly—Democratic.

Mrs. F.D. ROOSEVELT and Miss Ishbel MacDonald ADDRESSING LABOR MEETING.

In the wife of our President, her hostess in Washington, Miss Ishbel MacDonald, daughter of the visiting British Premier, found a fellow-spirit whose progress in life has been charted along a course almost parallel with her own. Spiritually, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and Miss MacDonald might have been cast in the same mold, for they are identical in temperament and pursuits. Both have spent many years working for the betterment of the human race, both abhor idleness in any form and both reveal the same simplicity in dress and manner. Mrs. Roosevelt's activities in social and welfare fields are too well known to go into here. But Miss MacDonald's career is not so familiar to Americans. At an early age, the Premier's daughter shouldered the responsibility of serving as her father's official hostess at 10 Downing Street, the London residence of British Premiers. In this capacity she greeted royalty and statesmen from every country in the world, acquitting herself life a veteran. In her spare moments, she went about the country in the interests of the score or so of welfare organizations in which she is interested, pursued her duties as a member of the London County Council and played angel of mercy to dozens of baby clinics. Her activities do not end here. She has stumped for her father in his election campaigns and is credited with having won for him a large portion of the feminine support that is his. Miss MacDonald has been asked to run for Parliament on many occasions, but she refused, although it is fairly certain she would have been elected. She does not drink or smoke, not because she disapproves of women doing those things, but because she has never felt the urge.

WASHINGTON, In Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, her White House hostess, Miss Ishbel MacDonald, daughter of Great Britain's visiting Prime Minister, found a kindred spirit. Spiritually, the women might have been cast in the same mold, for they are practically identical in temperament and pursuits.

Both are of the type that abhors idleness, and both like to occupy themselves in activities that not only fill their time, but are devoted to the betterment of their fellow-men and women, and both reveal the same simplicity in dress and manner.

For more than a decade before she entered the White House as "First Lady of the Land," Mrs. Roosevelt was lecturing to working groups, and was unceasingly active on practical projects to make life easier for working women. As Governor's Lady of New York State she handled her duties as hostess in an admirable manner and still found time to teach in the Todhunter School, run a furniture factory and engage in a vast round of social welfare work. She has never devoted much time to politics, but she has a wonderful grasp of national problems.

Miss MacDonald's life has progressed along a parallel course to that of Mrs. Roosevelt. At a very early age, the responsibility of acting as her father's official hostess at 10 Downing Street, the residence of British Premiers, was placed upon her shoulders. It was a big job for a young girl. She was twenty then—too young, really, to assume the dignity of hostess to royalty and state officials of practically every nation under the sun. But Miss MacDonald acquitted herself like a veteran.

Since then, the Premier's daughter has led a full life. Not one hour of her day is allowed to be wasted. When not serving as her father's hostess at Downing Street, Ishbel has many other pursuits to claim her attention. She is interested in a score of welfare organizations, is a member of the London County Council and angel to dozens of baby clinics.

But all of Miss MacDonald's other pursuits pale before her devotion to her distinguished father. She frankly confesses that her father is her career. She has stumped for him in his election campaigns, pinch-hit for him when he was unable, through illness or pressing official duties, to fulfill speaking engagements, and comforted him after many a hard day fighting his political opponents.

Many times Ishbel MacDonald has been asked to stand for Parliament, but she has refused to enter active politics, although it is fairly certain that she would be elected. Not that she does not believe in the woman politician, but because her duties might take up too much of her time and she could not be as attentive to her beloved father as she desires to be.

Miss MacDonald does not drink or smoke, nor does she use any kind of cosmetics—not even a touch of lipstick. She doesn't disapprove of women smoking or making up, but she never felt the inclination for tobacco and she doesn't need cosmetics, for she is of the ruddy type and nature has generously supplied all the color she needs.

The Premier's daughter finds some momentous changes in Washington from what it was when she visited here in 1929. Now there is a woman Cabinet member, Miss Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor, and a woman Minister, Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, United States Minister to Denmark. With these ladies and her charming White House hostess, Miss MacDonald has much in common, so her stay in the capital will pass all too quickly. But she will leave the United States with the knowledge that she has added to her vast circle of friends and, after all, that in itself is worth a trip across the Atlantic.

Yesterday afternoon, on a wet field, the Cardinal and Gray of Bristol was handed a severe setback at the hands of the Cardinal and Blue of Langhorne High. After the last man was out the score stood Langhorne, 4; Bristol, 2.

Two hits, a sacrifice and an error, gave Langhorne two runs in the first inning; a lead which the local nine could not overcome. In the fourth after hitting a triple, Downing scored. The visitors got their final run after an error, a stolen base and a sacrifice. Ruble scored.

Both Romig and Firce pitched good ball but errors and bad breaks lost the game. Vansant of Langhorne pitched a very good game, holding Bristol to two hits.

Bristol got their scores when Cahall was walked; after stealing second he scored on a sacrifice. In the last inning, Vansant got wild and walked Berry, Gibson and Firce. Then after two men got out, Oppman came through with a single which scored Berry, but a beautiful throw got Gibson out at the plate in a very close play.

Coach Dougherty's proteges will meet Fallsington on Thursday on the home field.

Plan Another Bonus March On Washington

the country. The movement, it was disclosed, is as well organized as was the first "bonus march" at its inception.

Unsuccessful efforts have been made in the past 24 hours by congressional advocates of the bonus to persuade the organizers to abandon their plan.

The campaign is being carried on by the Veterans' National Liaison Committee with headquarters in Washington. Its leaders are: Edward J. Williams of the "Khaki Shirt," and George Brady of the former B. E. F. Representative Kvale (F. L.) of Minnesota, a bonus advocate, and Representative Wright Patman, Democrat, of Texas, author of the cash payment bonus bill, both urged abandonment of the plan.

The bonus "invitation" calls all veterans to Washington, May 12. The next day, May 13th, is described as national conference day for organizations. On May 15th the organizers propose to have a parade with disabled veterans leading it.

Doylestown Merchants Want To Ban Itinerants

Scheetz, Justin H. Ely, Dr. Samuel R. Pearce, Stanley Bowers, Frank Corneer.

This matter was brought up a week ago at Council by a member of that body and was laid over until last night's adjourned meeting. President A. Harry Clayton pointed out that the proposed ordinance cannot be given a reading at an adjourned meeting, so "first reading" was postponed until the regular meeting of Council on May 15th. The ordinance cannot take effect before June.

Charles Rowe, a member of the Doylestown Merchants' Association, was the spokesman for the local business men. He made it plain that it was not the desire of the business men for Council to "rush this ordinance through," but that merchants desired Council to "give it their careful consideration."

Three Colorful Rookies

By BURNLEY

"SCHOOLBOY" ROWE
COLORFUL DETROIT ROOKIE WHO MAY BE ANOTHER RUTH IN THE MAKING--
--HE IS ADEPT AT BOTH HURLING AND HITTING!

Walter BECK
ALIAS "ELMER THE GREAT"
--BROOKLYN'S COCKY YOUNG MOUNDSMAN--

"HEAR ME" HANK LEIBER
THE GIANTS' LOUD SPEAKER!

I'LL SAY I'M GOOD!!
LEIBER AND BECK TELL THE WORLD!

THERE was a time, not so long ago, when the name of Art Shires stood for "color" in baseball. Those days are gone—and so is Shires. But as far as the game is concerned, there is no lack of color while men like Schoolboy Rowe, Hank Leiber and Walter Beck wear uniforms.

Rowe is the storybook rookie who strolled into the Detroit Tigers' camp and sprinkled wisecracks wherever he hauled his huge person. Then he stepped out on the field and made good. He can pitch and he can hit, and the Tigers are tickled to have him. He has developed into Bucky Harris' candidate for the Sensation of 1933.

It really does appear that experts who have been calling Rowe "the coming Babe Ruth" are not stretching too far. One thing is sure—the lad will drag in plenty of custom-ers eager to see what he's all about. And that brings us to Hank Leiber and Walter Beck, who have a good hold on the left field position with the Giants. Here is another rookie whose success is one of those things that rarely occurs outside of fiction. For a while, no one could say that he boasted of his prowess in every line of sports would be an understatement. His achievements, to hear Hank tell about them, have been little short of stupendous. HOW he can chatter.

plenty strong. He is a six footer and carts around about 200 pounds. His forte is hitting. He confides in you that he will hit 400 this year, as a starter. The records show that he batted .360 for Winston-Salem of the Piedmont League last year. He swaggered himself into a chance—and he has made good. Terry thinks he's the playing find of the year. Candidate No. 2 for the Sensation of 1933.

A "NEW DEAL" FOR THE MAKER - SELLER - BUYER

Since March 4th, many surprising things have happened. The term "New Deal" has taken a definite place in the vocabulary of the people of this country. The HOME TOWN LEAGUE stores also have a "New Deal." They are giving preference to those manufacturers, who directly or indirectly help this community.

They well realize that a large percentage of the money that passes through their hands, if returned to manufacturers in this vicinity will eventually be spent again in their stores.

It is a happy feeling for the customer, too; to know that when he places a dollar on a counter that next week or next month he will again receive part of it back in wages.

Ask your store-keeper for HOME TOWN LEAGUE products, buy those you see advertised in the BRISTOL COURIER.

Through the co-operation of everyone, this "NEW DEAL" will not only benefit us all individually, but help the community as well.
